2. What do you value most in life?

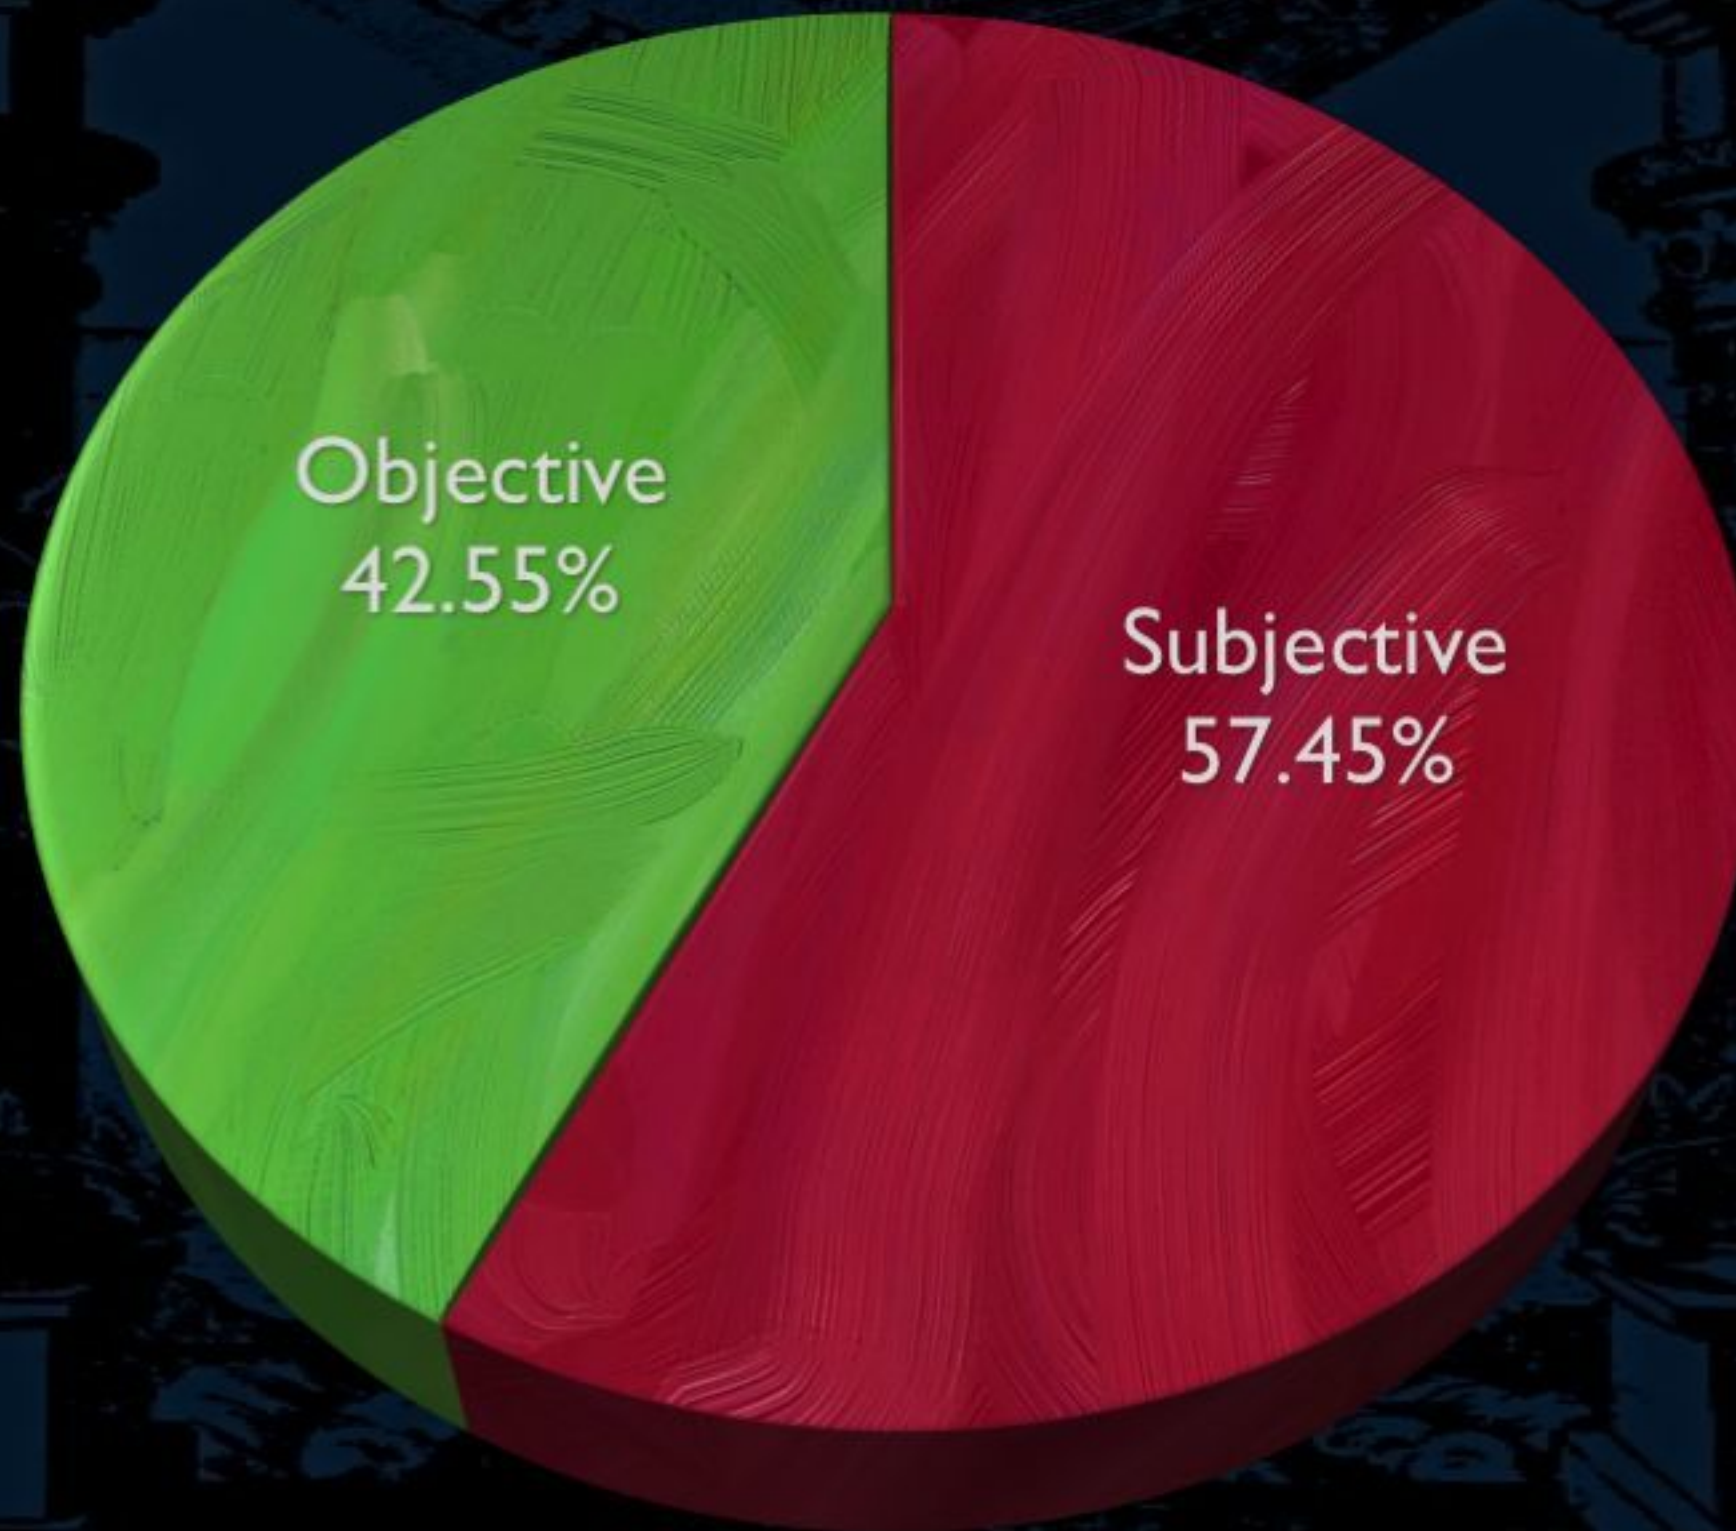

3. Do you think that the following set of statements, considered as a whole, is True or False?

Truth is SINGULAR. There is no such thing as my Truth, his Truth, or her Truth. There is only THE Truth. There is only ONE WAY THAT THINGS ACTUALLY ARE, which exists separately and independently from human perception.

Response	#	%
True	20	42.55%
False	27	57.45%

3. Is Truth singular (Objective), or is it different for everyone based on perception (Subjective)?

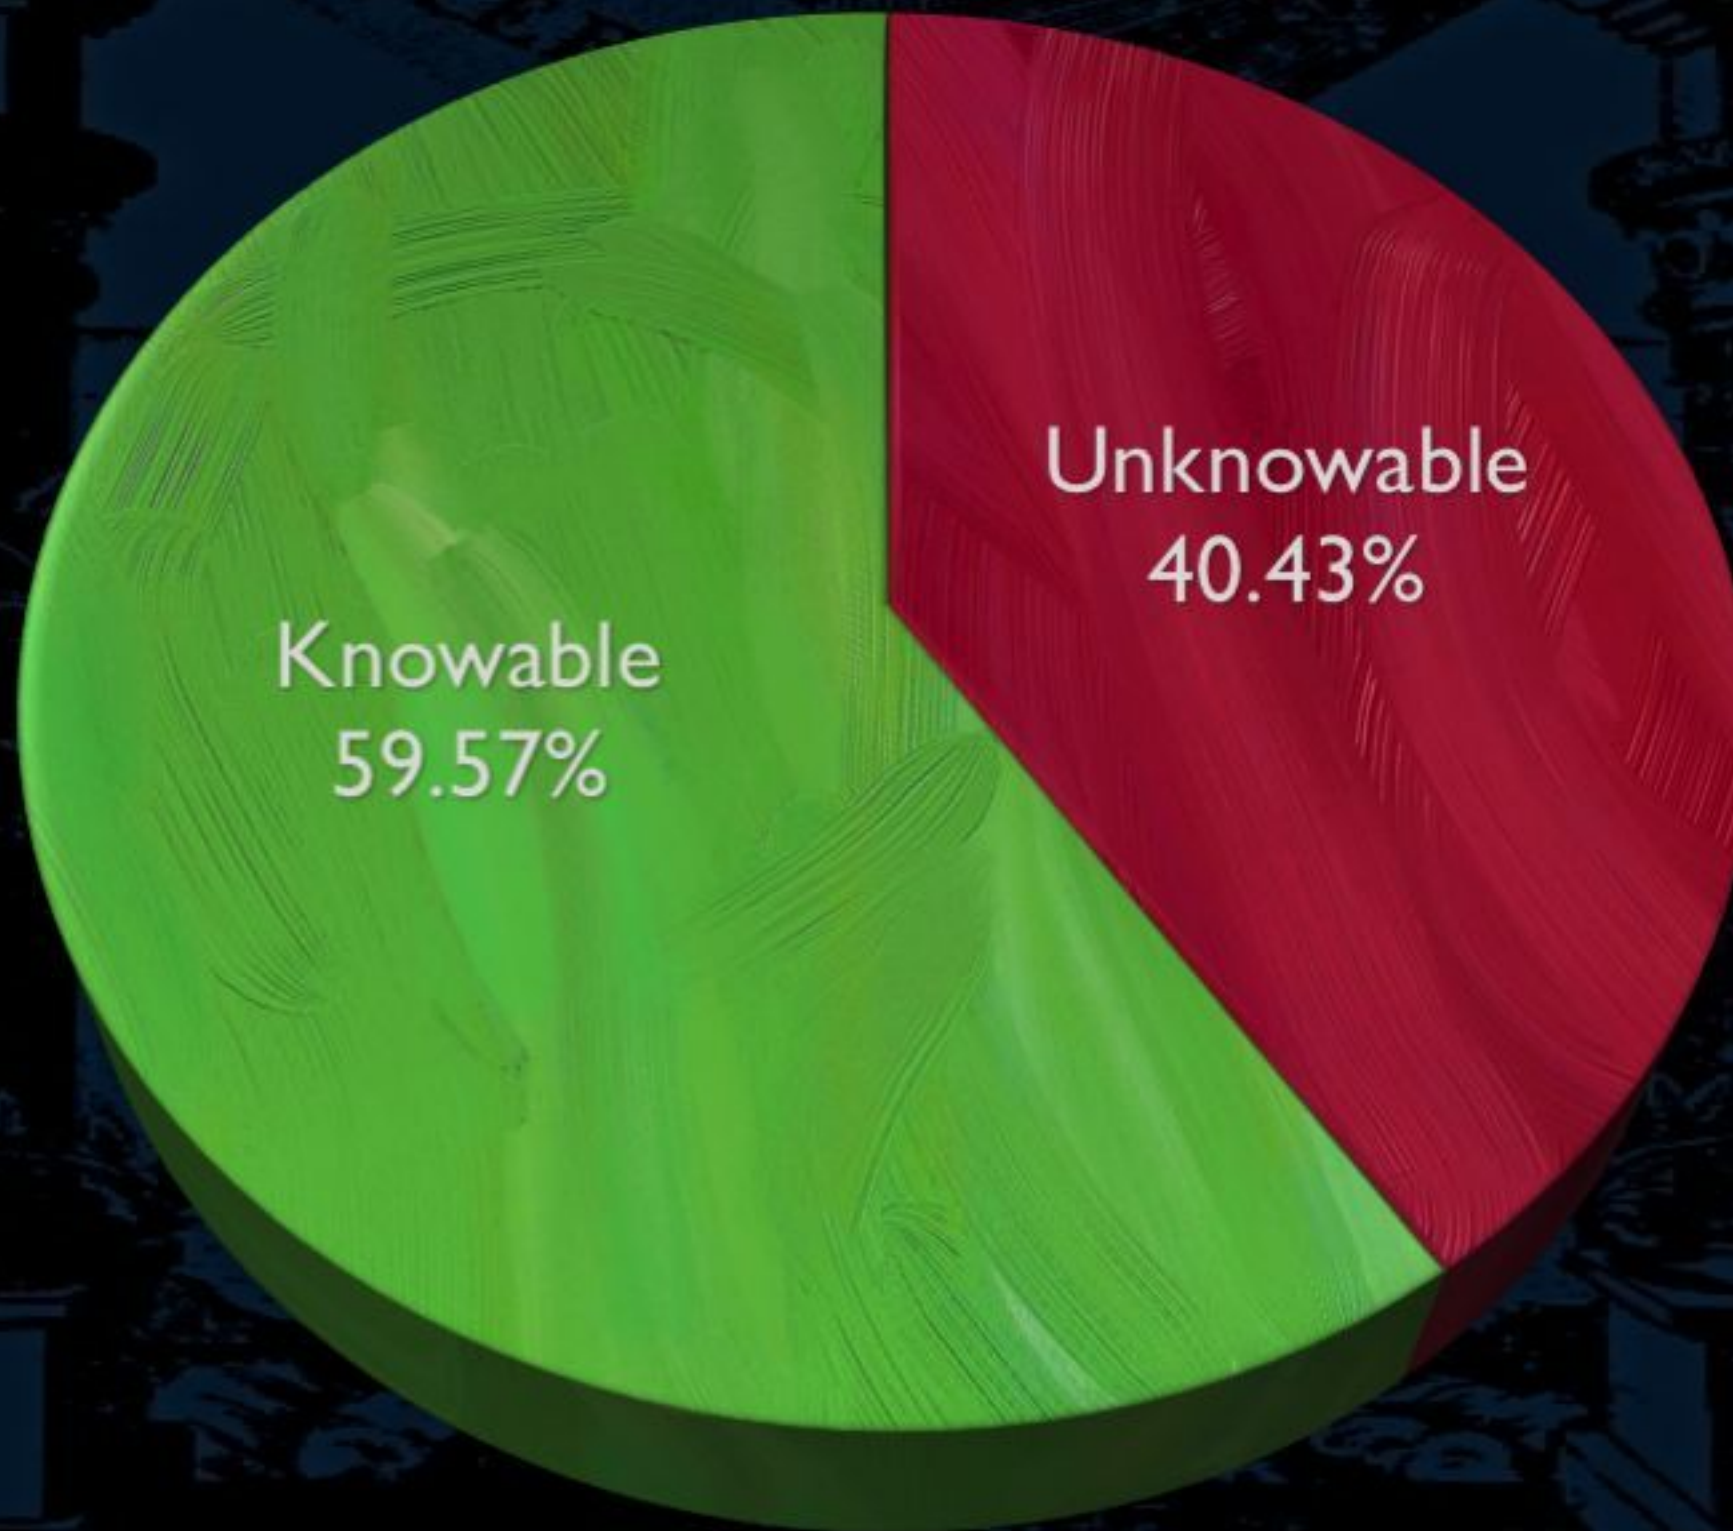

4. Choose the set of statements which most closely resembles your own thinking:

- A. The Truth about events, circumstances, situations, or happenings in the world CAN BE KNOWN. Reality is not based upon perceptions or opinions. Reality is “the way things actually are.” Reality is based upon Truth, which is objective and KNOWABLE.
- B. The Truth about events, circumstances, situations, or happenings in the world CAN NOT REALLY BE KNOWN. Perception is Reality. Reality, like perception, is relative. There is really no such thing as “definitive truth” or “the way things actually are.” Reality is subjective, and therefore ultimately UNKNOWABLE.

Response	#	%
A	28	59.57%
B	19	40.43%

4. Can Truth be KNOWN, or is it UNKNOWABLE?

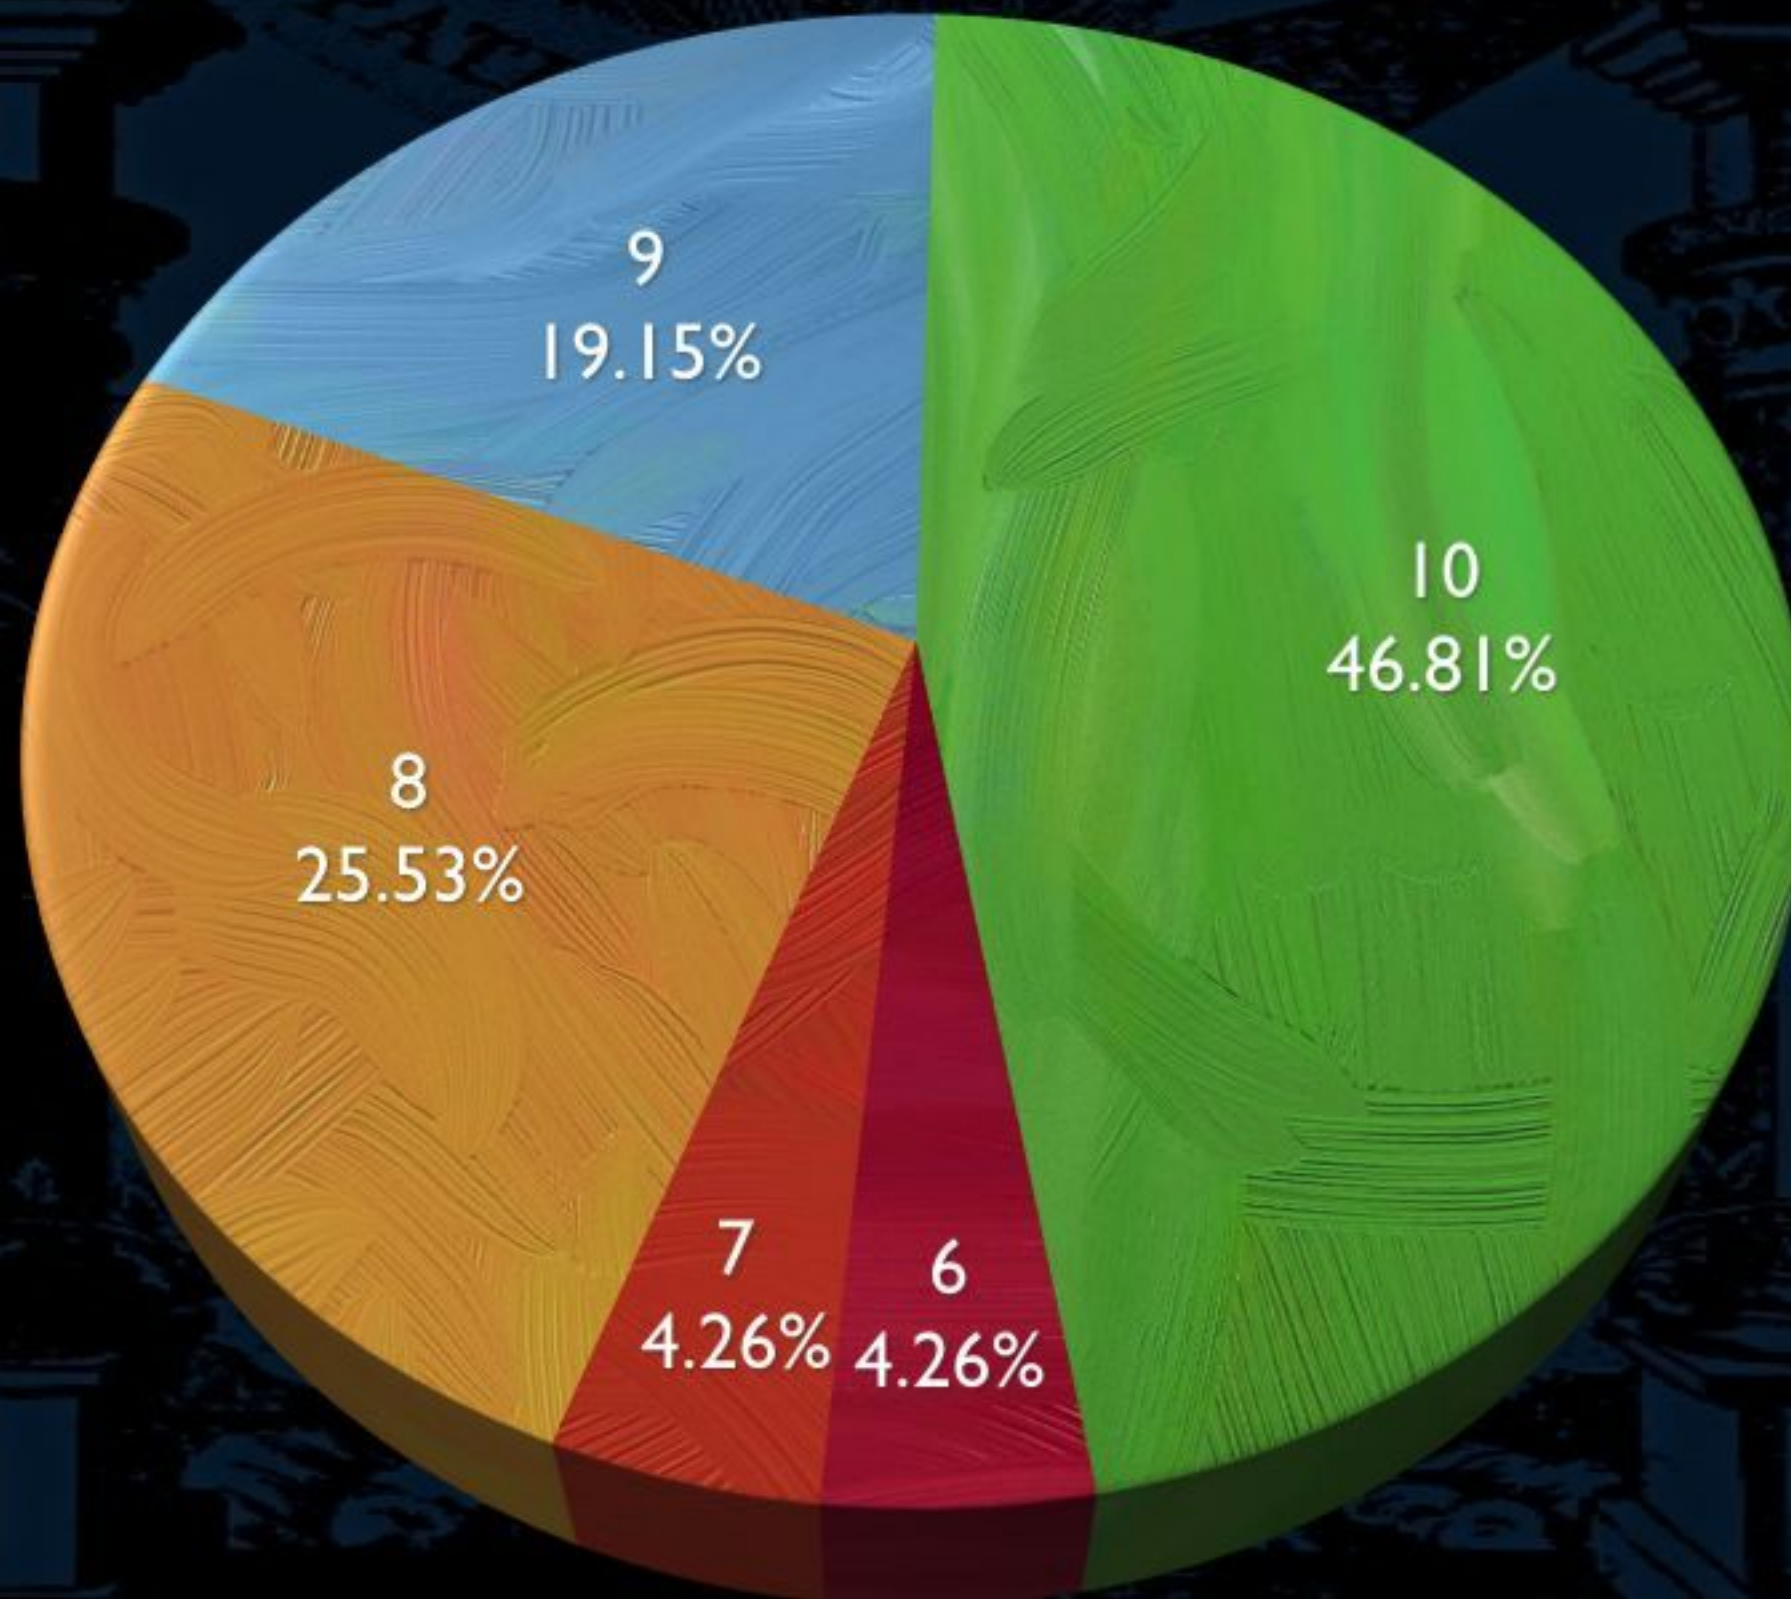

5. On a scale of 1 to 10 (1 being the least and 10 being the most), how important is the role of Truth and Knowledge in your life?

9	9	19.15%

5. How important is the role of Truth and Knowledge in your life?

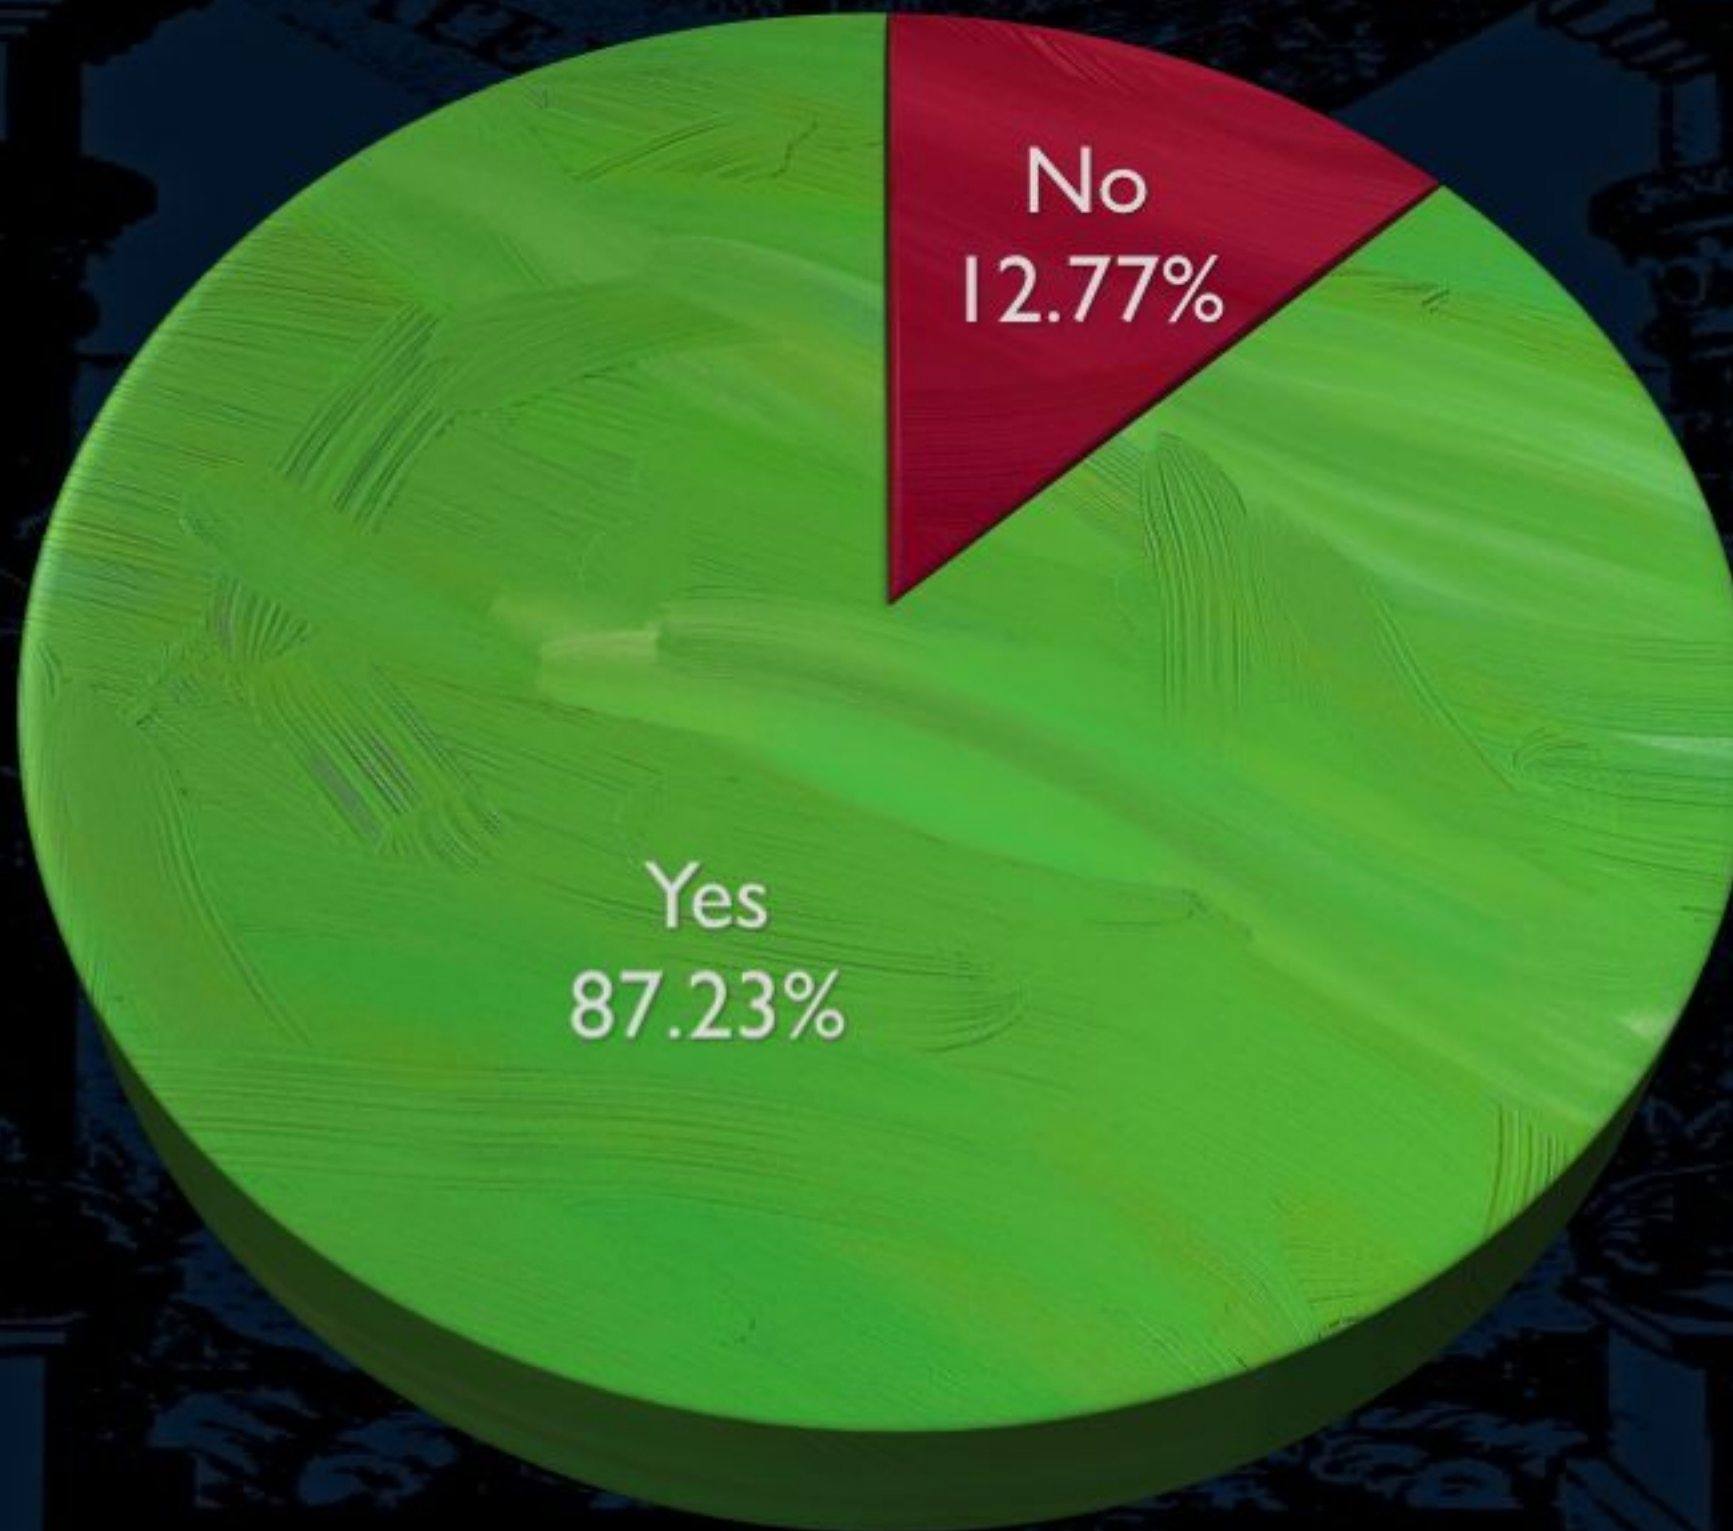

6. Choose the set of statements which most closely resembles your own thinking:

- A. Human Beings have Free Will. Human Beings have the ability to choose which actions they will or will not take. Human behavior is not pre-determined. Human behavior is ultimately based upon Free Will Choice, which is each individual's personal responsibility.
- B. Human Beings do not have Free Will. Human Beings do not have the ability to choose which actions they will or will not take. Human behavior is pre-determined. The behavior of human beings is ultimately bound by conditions and factors which are beyond their control, so therefore, each individual can not truly be held personally responsible for everything they do.

Response	#	%
A	41	87.23%
B	6	12.77%

6. Do human beings have Free Will?

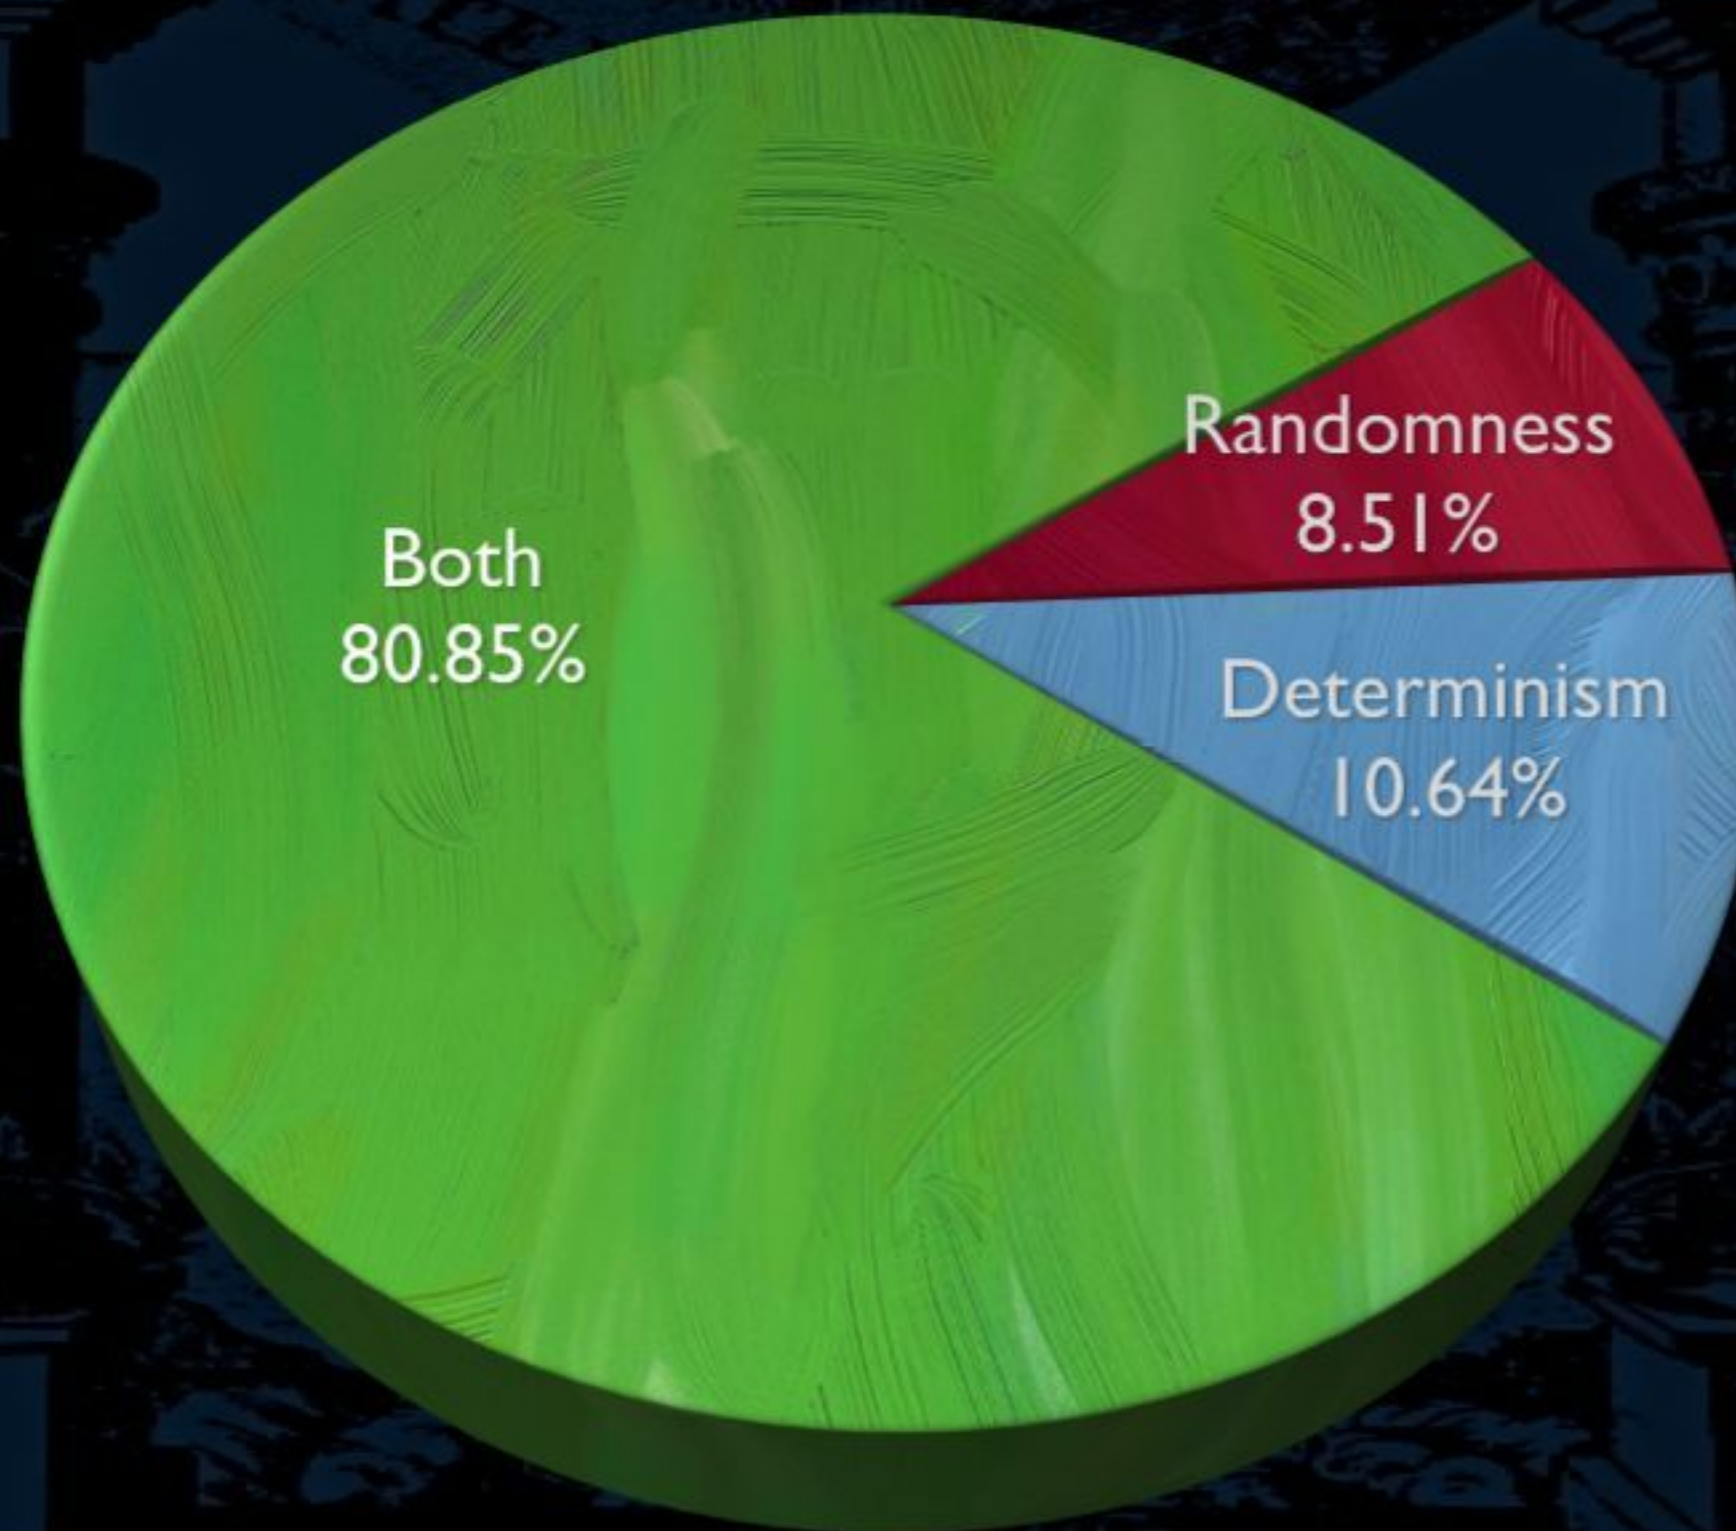

7. Choose the set of statements which most closely resembles your own thinking:

- A. Everything in life is chaotic and happening at random. Life in general was a cosmic accident and there does not seem to be any grand purpose or meaningful reason for human existence.
- B. Everything in life is pre-ordained. God is making everything happen, and God knows exactly how it is all going to play out. Free Will is an illusion because God is in total control of everything, at all times and places.
- C. Both randomness and structure exist in the Universe simultaneously. The Creator does not control every event within the Creation. We have been gifted with Free Will to choose our behaviors, but when we act, there are consequences to our actions, which ultimately create the reality we experience.

Response	#	%
A	4	8.51%
B	5	10.64%
C	38	80.85%

7. Is your Worldview one of Randomness, Determinism, or a mixture of both?

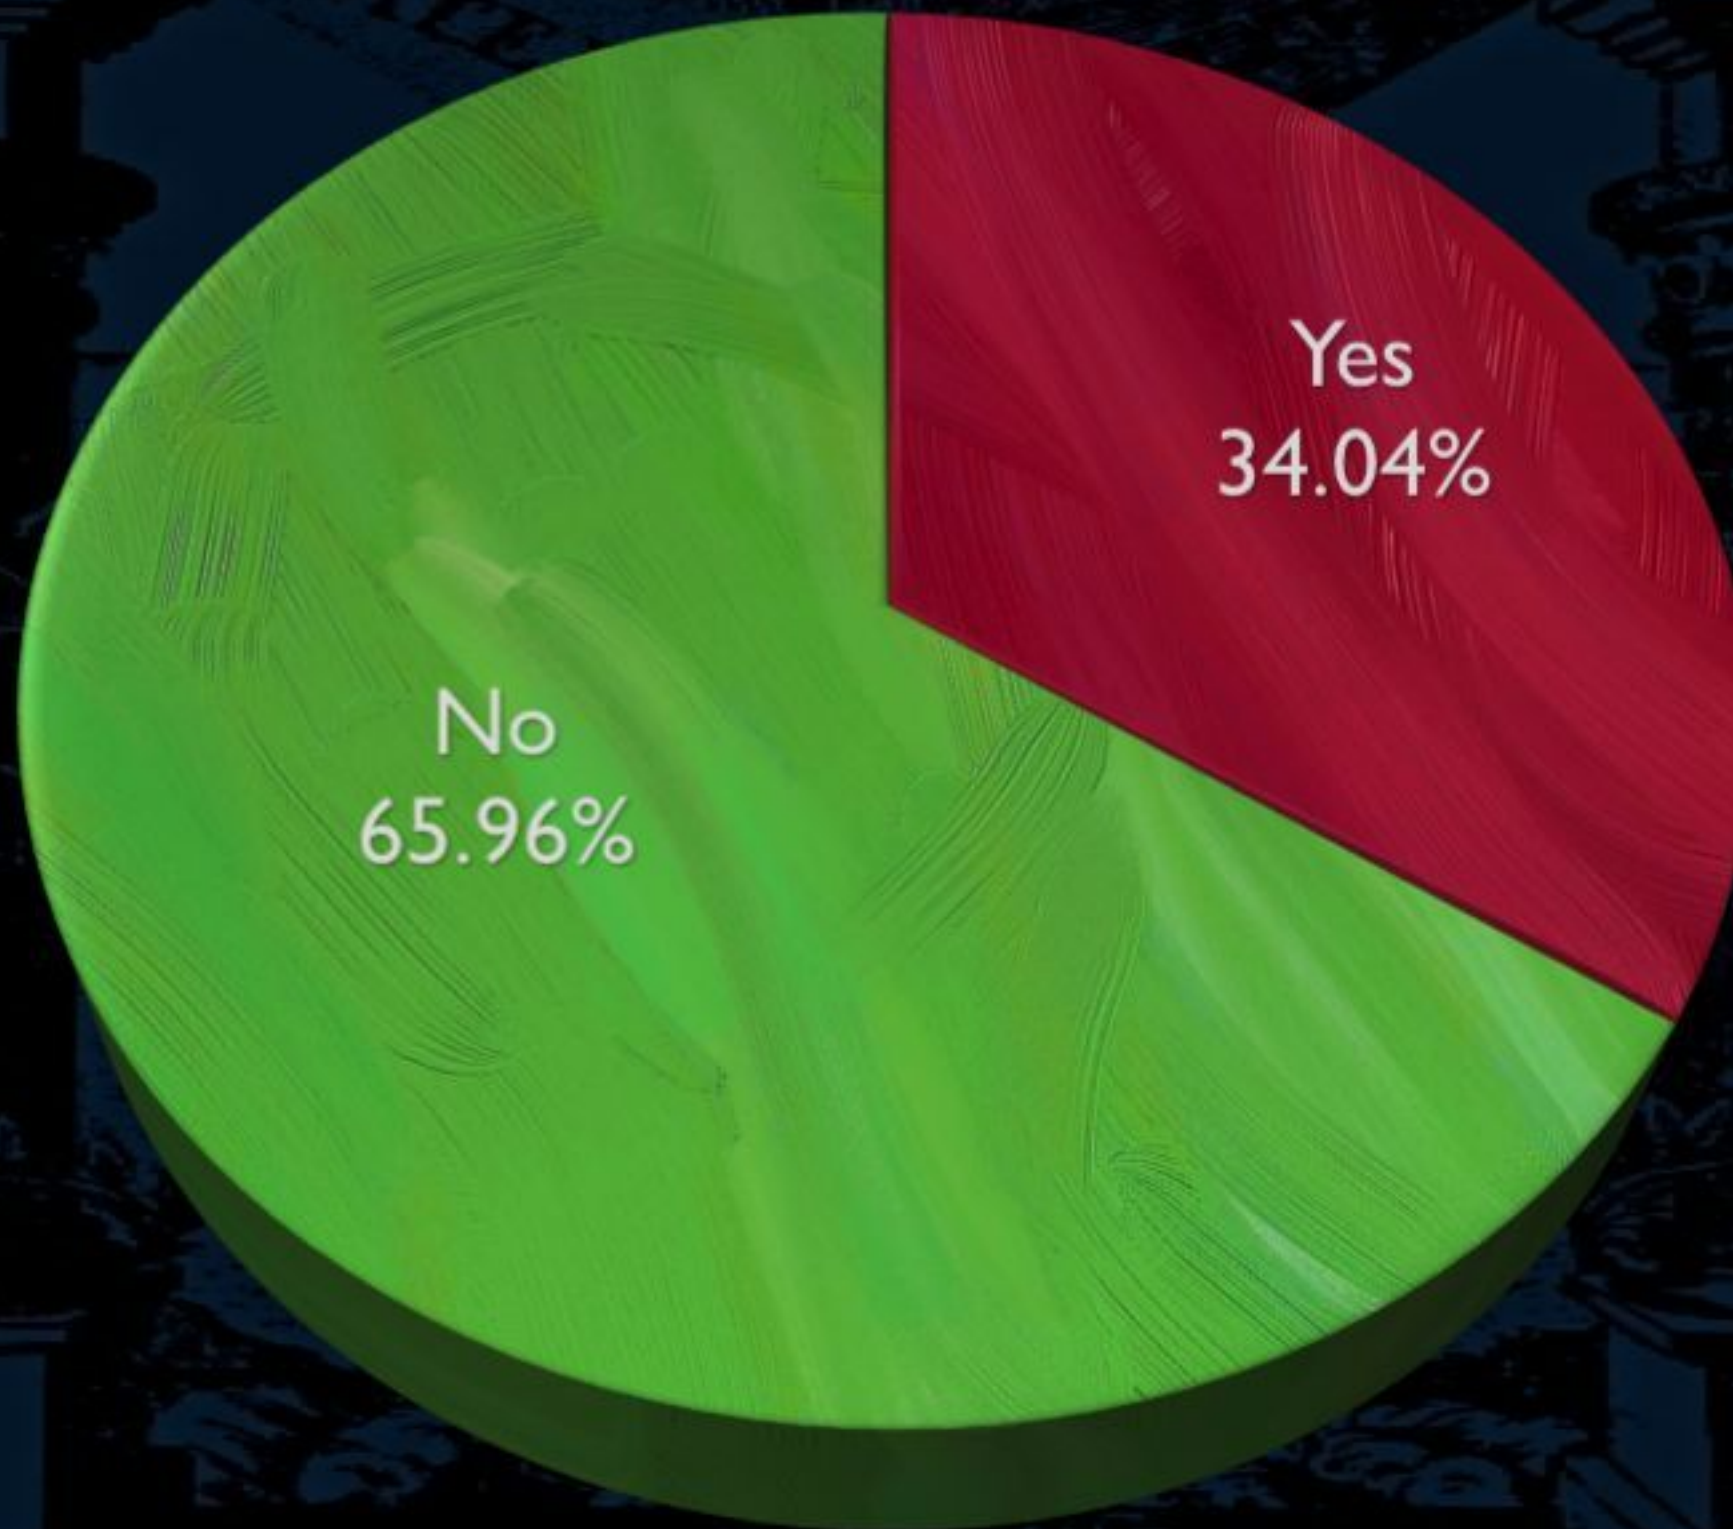

8. Choose the set of statements which most closely resembles your own thinking:

- A. Beliefs and opinions are very important when it comes to determining what is True or False. Beliefs and opinions also matter a great deal when it comes to determining what is happening in our world. Things can only affect me if I believe they are real. If I don't believe in something, it can't really affect me in any way, or have any negative impact upon my life. My beliefs and opinions ultimately determine what I think is real or not real.
- B. When it comes to what is True or False, beliefs and opinions are pretty much meaningless. Truth can be recognized and discovered, and it exists independently of human perceptions, opinions, or beliefs. Whether or not something in the world can affect my life does not depend upon my belief in it. My beliefs and opinions do not determine what is actually happening, or whether something is real or not.

Response	#	%
A	16	34.04%
B	31	65.96%

8. Are your personal beliefs important when it comes to determining Truth?

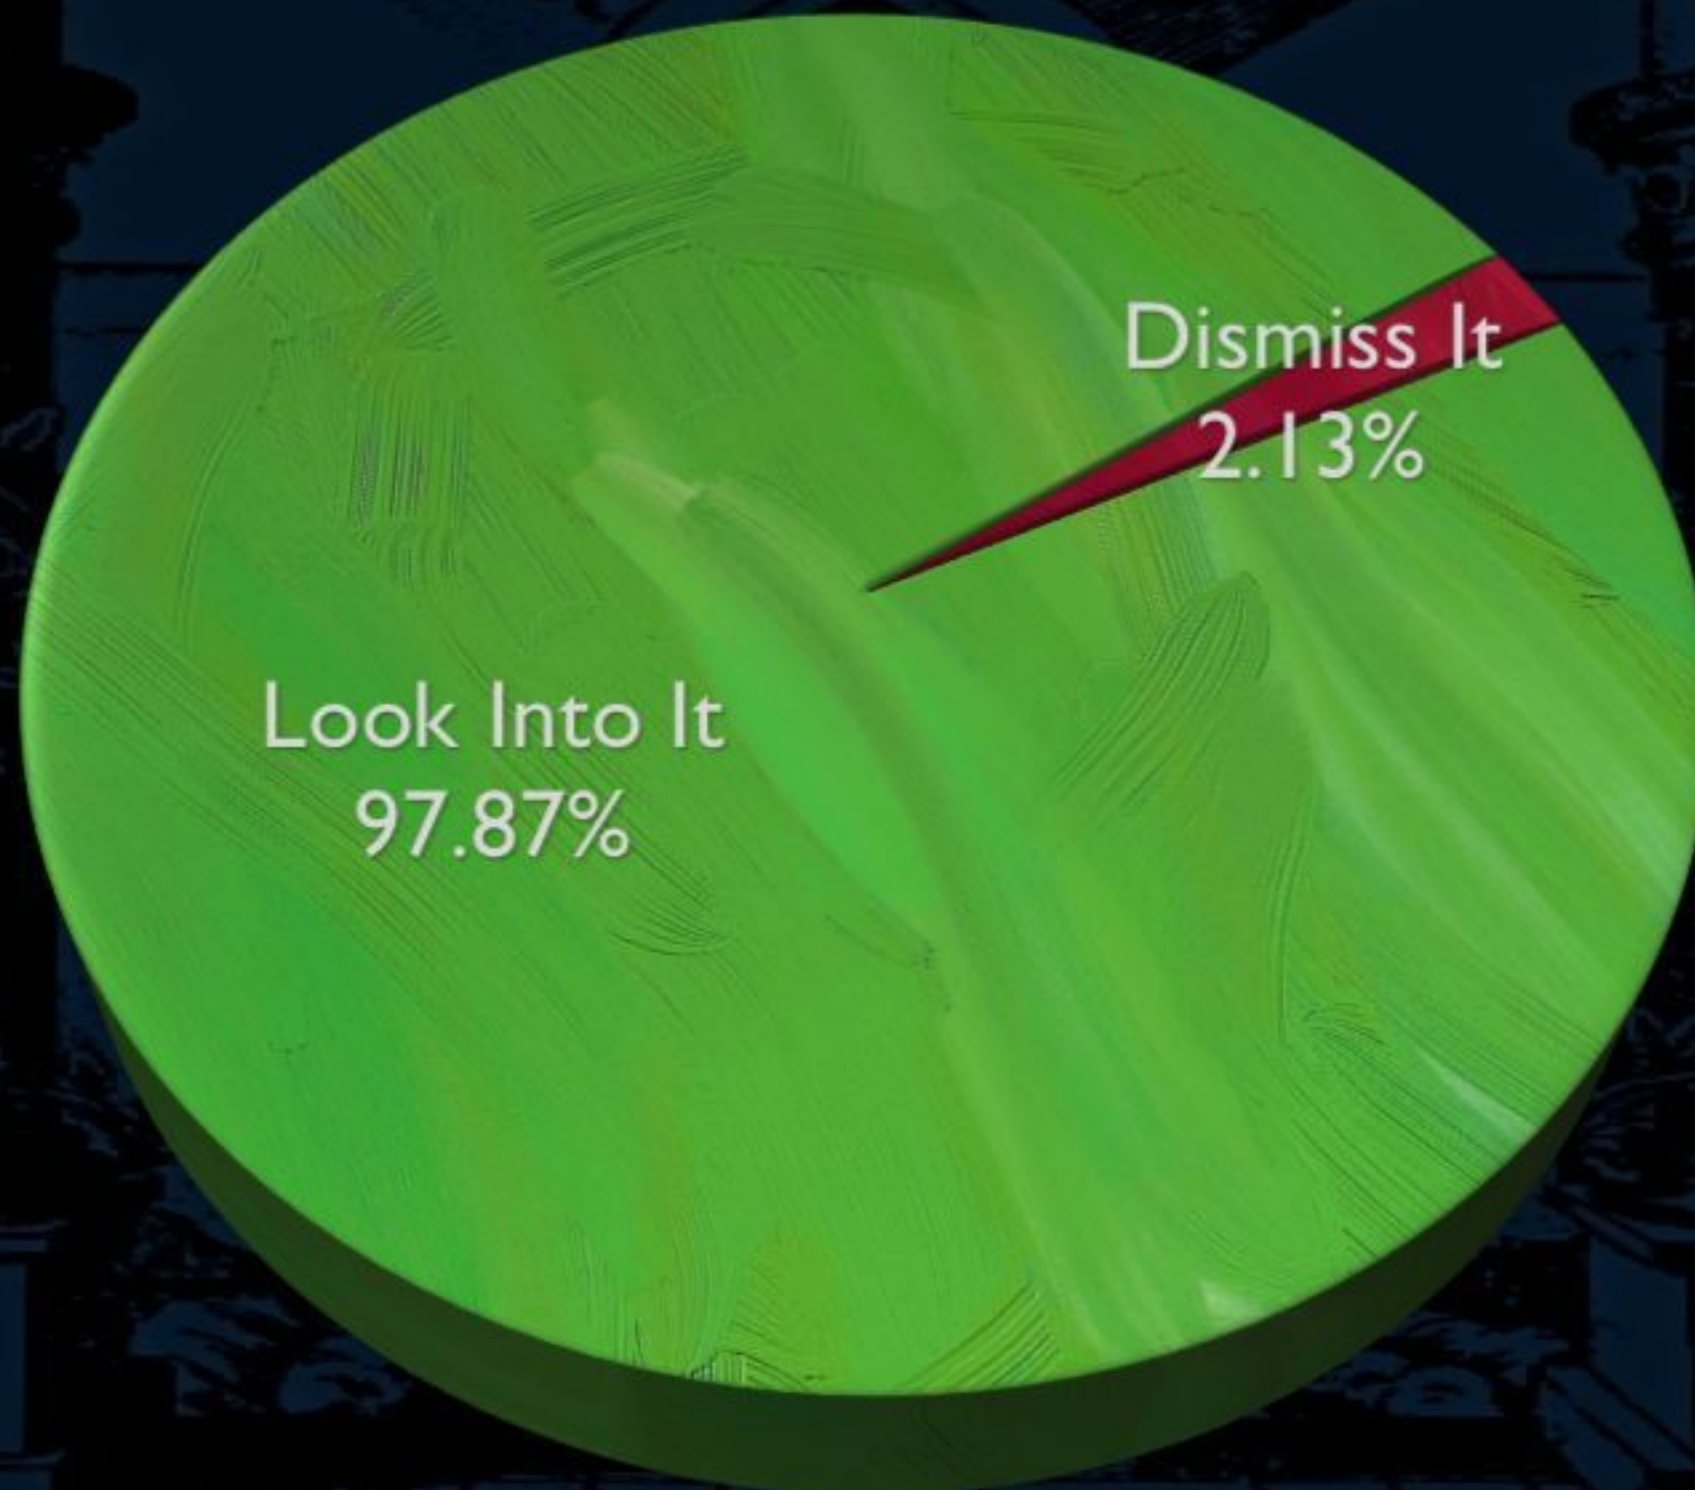

9. When encountering uncomfortable information that conflicts with something you currently believe to be true, which statement below most closely describes your approach to that information:

- A. I usually think information like that can't possibly be true, so, more likely than not, I will not look into it for myself to see if there is anything to it.
- B. I will usually check to find out if the information has merit or not. After I look into it for myself, if I determine it was true, even if it conflicted with what I previously thought, I will adjust my own views accordingly.

Response	#	%
A	1	2.13%
B	46	97.87%

9. When encountering uncomfortable information that conflicts with something you currently believe, do you dismiss it or look into it for yourself?

9. When encountering information that conflicts with what you currently believe, do you doubt yourself?

BULLSHIT

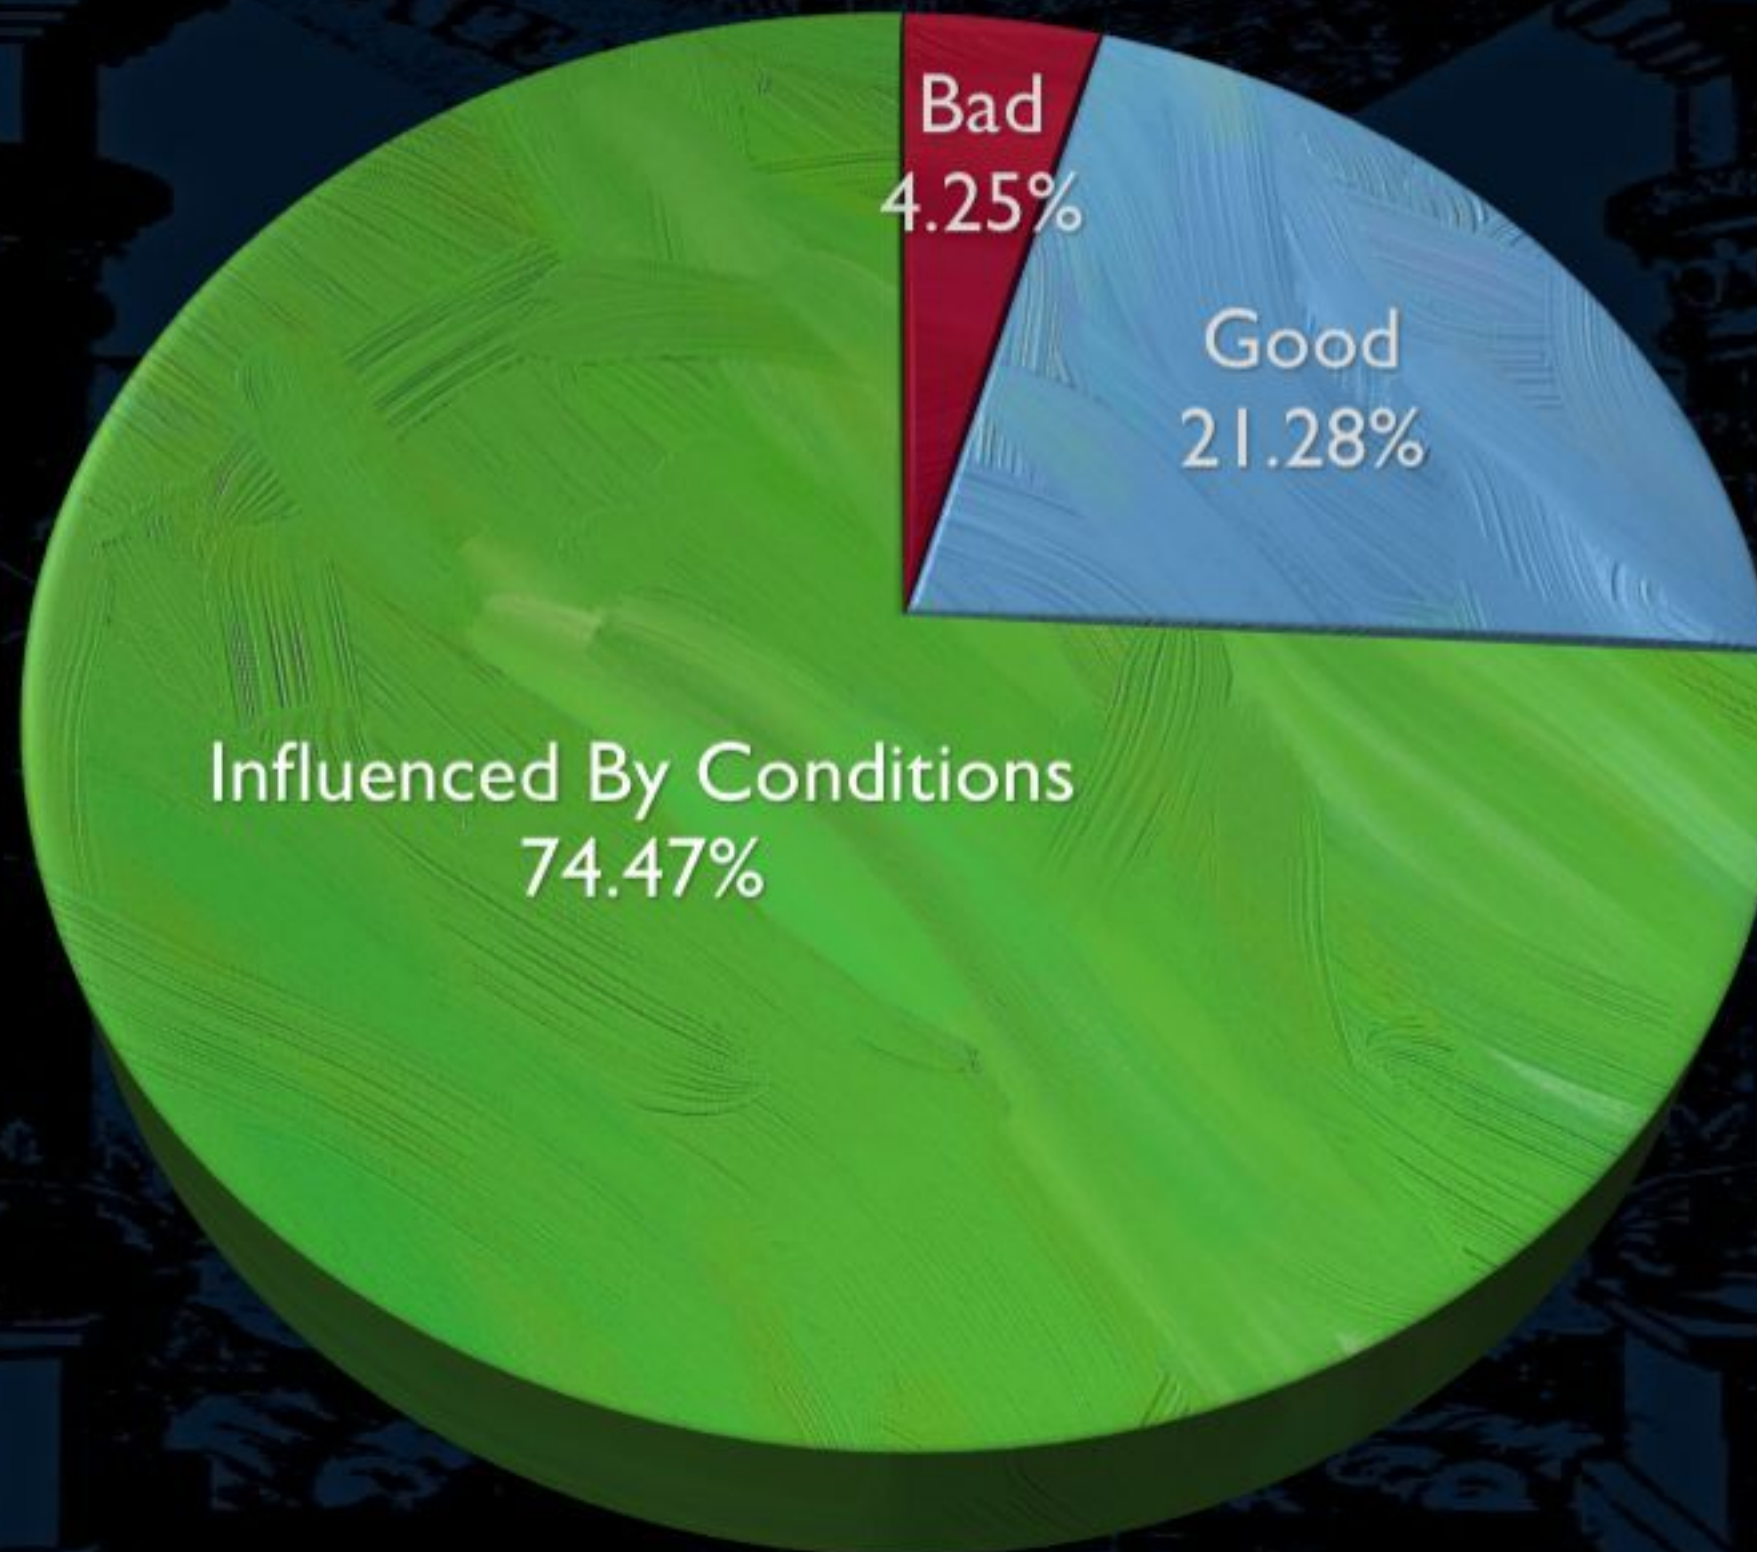

A large, 3D-rendered red button with a white border. The word "BULLSHIT" is written in white, bold, sans-serif capital letters across the center of the button. The button has a slightly textured surface and a small, semi-circular indentation at the bottom. The background is dark blue with faint, stylized outlines of classical columns and a pediment.

10. Choose the set of statements which most closely resembles your own thinking:

- A. Human Nature is fundamentally bad. People are born with many flaws, and they generally stay that way throughout their lives. It is pretty much impossible to change human beings' Nature. That's just how it is.
- B. Human Nature is fundamentally good. People come into the world in an unflawed condition. People can make mistakes in their lives, but deep down inside, human beings are good people by their Nature.
- C. Human Nature is neither good nor bad. The Human Condition can be influenced toward either the positive or negative based upon the quality of surroundings and life-interactions in which human beings exist. While an individual may influence positive change in their own condition if they work to improve themselves, conditions are still more fundamental to the ways most human beings behave than any inherent qualities or characteristics they may possess.
